by c. h. r.

R. W. Cawthorne, of Route 1, a most pleasant visitor in this area a few weeks. I marveled at the memory of this veteran farmer and how well read he was in matters of the old days in Appomattox and surely the latter subject is always out for him to discuss often.

Dad is an outstanding restaurant and a comfortable experience. The best places in America are usually marked, and it has been my pleasure to have been guests at many of the top-ranked gourmet's delight places. But, what reminds me now, was that an Appomattox lady stopped to tell me of her delightful experience in having a meal at one of the better eating places in Virginia. And, he found the prices most reasonable, too. Since having been a guest at this place some ten years ago, I have had to say community to restaurant so good that the chance to stop by, will be sure and "rave" to their guest what a wonderful time they had!

This brief paragraph has to do with some of the crape myrtle blooms coming from the home of Mrs. Claude Smith. One of the loveliest crape myrtle shrubs I have ever seen is at the home of Mrs. Joe Irby, in Hillcrest. Mr. Lightfoot and I drove by on Sunday to see it. And we had met the original planting from the Claude Smiths. Then over to the home of the Joe Irbys and Lucy Smith. To me they have one of the most beautiful crape myrtles I have ever seen. Joe Irby, in the original was given by Lucy Smith, from the home of Claude Smiths. And, Lucy Smithof And, so I say Smithof And, so I have a nice crape myrtle growing along: a gift from Lucy Smith, from the original plantation, Mother Smithof And, so I say as a friend something that has grown and by a thing of beauty in the end, something to increase as well as improve property, and a very splendored thing."

Mr. W. C. Ould was by to show me a wooden container, about 12 inches long, and an inch on all dimensions. What was in it? Bees!

Now we missed the boat late last season, To "miss the boat" is that you have lost an opportunity—according to my definition—as what I did. We were all around town," and passed over and justly popular Appomattox Club golf course. But, Betsy, it was raining, we were driving with lights and safety—a good thing. If road conditions are hazardous, in the interest a courtesy to put on your lights. And so, in this case, we drove by the local golf course and there was a guy out playing golf in the rain, and he was holding an old black umbrella! I asked Brightleaf to please let me get our news camera for what she decided against reasons that I would get wet, and I was no fish. To me the proper angle for shots, a photographer has to get on the ground and point the camera upwards—and all that, and I only thought that it would be over was out there in the rain under a big black umbrella!

Mr. Ga- A motorist, whose car was hit in a highway accident near Roberta, remained at the scene and drove more than a dozen miles of a friend. The friend, Mr. Stembridge, collapsed at the door and was taken to a hospital.

Mr. Stembridge had his head in the window, and it side-swiped a passing truck.

The landowner came in the office to have a sign printed to protect his property:

"Hunting, or Fishing. Survivors Will Be Prosecuted."

Golf Club Closes Charter Membership

The Appomattox Country Club met in the local court house Friday night, July 29. Club president, C. T. Moses, Jr., presided. Percy George, chairman of the membership committee, reported a total of 73 memberships, which with the inclusion of family members, made a total of 126 members.

The club voted at this time to close the charter membership.

Anyone desiring to join the club after August 1, 1960, will pay an initiation fee of $25.00 for a single membership, plus $25.00 annual dues. The initiation fee for a family membership will be $30.00, plus $30.00 dues per year. The dues can be prorated if the new members so desires.

Nine committees were appointed by Dr. S. R. Lawson, chairman of the Greens Committee.

Each committee will be responsible for the maintenance of a green.

Mr. David Caldwell has been authorized to issue guest tags at the request of a club member, and to collect $1.00 green fee for any guest using the golf course. Every guest must have a tag in order to play golf.

Membership cards and member ship identification tags have been issued to all club members. Members are asked to tie the identification tag to the golf bag, or place it where it can be seen, when on the course. If any member has not received membership card or identification tag, they should contact Mrs. J. Lloyd Hudson, secretary-treasurer of the club.

Additional improvements to the course are in the planning stage.

4-H MEMBERS LEARN PUBLIC SPEAKING

Not all 4-H club work is centered around, raising cows, chickens, corn and pigs. Many 4-H members become gifted orators, say state 4-H officials at VPI.

While carrying on projects, the 4-H-ers make oral reports at meetings, fit words to actions in giving demonstrations, and get the feel of appearing before an audience in showmanship and exhibit events. Boys and girls most likely to succeed as speakers are given special coaching by county agents, teachers, or local leaders. Some receive tips on radio and TV techniques, and appear on local programs.

Several senior 4-H members were recognized for giving the best speeches in the state public speaking contest held recently at VPI. The top speaker in boys' competition, C. O. Eanes, Jr., of Floyd, will receive an expense-paid trip to the annual meeting of a cooperative.

In the girls' contest, Faye Wyland, of Buckingham will have a choice of attending the state leadership camp or the state conservation camp, both sponsored by VPI at Virginia Beach.

DAIRYMEN CAN MAKE MORE MONEY FROM MILK

Want to increase net profits by up to 60 cents on each 100 pounds of milk produced?

If you're a dairyman, that proposal probably sounds enticing. It's simple, says W. S. Griffith, dairy specialist at VPI. Use improved dairy practices — and don't forget your record book so you can keep close tabs on your herd.

Griffith cites the 1959 Michigan DHIA summary which shows that while it took $1.93 worth of feed to produce 100 pounds of milk in low-producing herds, it took only $1.33 worth of feed to produce 100 pounds of milk in the high-producing herds.

Total feed costs per cow were only $132 in the herds averaging 300 pounds of butterfat or less. In herds averaging over 500 pounds of butterfat the feed cost per cow was $183. Even though the total annual feed cost per cow was $51 higher in high-producing herds, the feed cost of producing 100 pounds of milk was 60 cents cheaper.

In the low-producing herds, averaging 6,800 pounds of milk and 273 pounds of butterfat, the dairymen received $2.04 for every $1 spent for feed. In the high-producing herds, the dairymen received $3.03 for every $1 spent for feed. Essentially the difference in cost of producing 13,700 pounds of milk and 6,800 pounds of milk was only $51 according to the Michigan records.

Griffith says that dairying scientifically calls for close culling, intelligent feeding, and wise breeding. All these make it necessary for a dairyman to keep and use adequate records.

Profitable Occupation

Belmar, N. J. Beach combing is not only profitable, but bending down to pick up lost coins slims the waist, Mrs. Viola Haberstick, 42, of Belmar, has found.

In one month, Mrs. Haberstick picked up $39.78 in coins, just one penny more than her husband's coin combing yielded.

Softball League Play-offs Here Now in Progress

Play-offs are now underway in the Appomattox Softball League.

In semi-final games played thus far, the Amoco team has defeated Oakville, 2 to 1 and 11 to 6, and has won the right to play in the finals. In the other half of the semi-finals, Appomattox Garment Co. defeated Pamplin in the first game, 7 to 3, but last night lost to Pamplin 7 to 1. Therefore, a third game between these two teams will be necessary, and will be played tonight at the Town Ball Park, at 8 o'clock.

The final series, for the best 3 of 5 games, will begin on Friday night.

Attendance has been very good at the games thus far, and should continue high during the play-off series.
